Ace Gallery, Beverly Hills is hosting “Ethereal Material,” an exhibition of Ruth Pastine’s work till November 12, 2016.

Southern California-based artist Pastine’s minimalist works address phenomena of color perception. She became interested in color theory through the work of chemist Michel Eugène Chevreul and his systematic study of color perception. Color relativity — the perception of influence between adjacent colors — has remained a dominating subject in Pastine’s paintings and works on paper. She “achieves a persuasive intensity in her paintings by approaching them with physical and intellectual fervor,” observes art writer Peter Frank. Pastine has exhibited widely in the United States and Japan, and is part of many public and corporate collections.

The exhibition is on view at the ACE Gallery, 9430 Wilshire Blvd, Beverly Hills, CA 90212, USA.
